

Eye Level Art Membership Frequently Asked Questions

Q: What classes does Eye Level Art offer?

A: Eye Level Art currently offers a weekly Work From Life drawing class taught by Max Miller. This class is currently taught on Sunday evenings from 6:00 until 8:00 but will move to Monday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 beginning on November 2. The regular price for this class is $15. Member price for this class is $10.

Eye Level Art is planning more upcoming classes that will debut this winter and into early spring. These include cooking, yoga, chess, social dance, and a master class for portraiture as well as others that will be announced soon.

Q: What is a quarterly art subscription?

A: Eye Level Art's quarterly art subscription is for those who want to expand their personal art collection, but either aren't quite ready to spend upwards of $500 on one work or just want a fun way to get into the Charleston arts. For $250 a year, subscribers will receive one original work of art by a Charleston artists each season. These works will be original and created specifically for Eye Level Art and available only to the public through the art subscription. The subscription service will begin in January of 2010.

Q: What is the minimum discount members will receive on entrance to events and classes?

A: Members will receive a minimum 20% off the non-member entrance price for all events and classes.

Q: What is a "member's pass" to a party mean?

A: A member's pass is your ticket to the party. At various points throughout the year Eye Level Art will host parties that are just for fun--like the Dark Arts Ball. Members who receive member's passes as part of their membership package can use those passes at any of these parties throughout the year. For example, a member could use one of their passes at the Dark Arts Ball on October 31st.

Q: What does is the Apprentice Membership mean?

A: The Apprentice Membership is Eye Level Art's way of supporting and growing young and emerging talent in Charleston. This membership is open to students within the arts who have a talent (whether that be graphic design, videography, music, etc.) they can offer the Eye Level Art community in return for a membership. Eye Level Art will strive to promote these young talents within the community in return for their support.
